[Summary]

I am skilled front-end developer with extensive expertise in web development (7+ years) from Armenia.

Any stack. Any library. Any framework. I have worked extensively with Vue and React, and to a lesser extent with Angular.

My priority is completing tasks and delivering features on time. At any cost.

When I will face with a new stack or tool, I quickly adapt and learn it within the project's designated timeframe.

[Key highlights]

My language levelling progress:

- English(A1-A2)
- Russian(Native)
- Armenian(Beginner)

I am not ready for relocation still.

Currently I am looking for a new remote job.

Flexible pricing for interesting projects.

[Why is this resume so brief and lacking in information?]

1. Please take a look at this resume <https://furryablack.github.io/resume/>.
2. Review the skills section.
3. Review the summary and work experience sections.
4. I see a senior-level professional with Bootstrap.css skills mentioned. This doesn't seem serious.
5. Can I omit such obvious things? Of course, I can.
6. Will I find a new project with that resume? Most likely not. The chances are significantly reduced.
7. The recruiter is looking for a senior professional.
8. The recruiter may not be aware that someone with such extensive experience can already handle website development.
9. A senior professional with his level of experience has surpassed individual libraries.
10. This noiseless resume will not have any fluff or noise.
11. The emphasis in this noiseless resume is placed on the summary section.
